FORMAL INTERPRETATION No. 15-02

Subject: CA Documents per Manufacturing Facility
Reference: UAP, Part V, Section 2(C)
Effective Date: November 1, 2015

ISSUE

Can one manufacturing facility have more than one set of approved compliance assurance documents?

INTERPRETATION

A manufacturer must have approved compliance assurance documents (i.e., building systems documents, compliance assurance manual and on-site installation instructions) for the product(s) it proposes to manufacture at its manufacturing facility. A manufacturer may develop separate building systems documents and on-site installation instructions for different products produced at the same facility and have them approved by different evaluation agencies. However, a manufacturer may have only one compliance assurance manual that must be approved by all applicable evaluation agencies unless separate processes are used to manufacture the products.
